Channels for Video Transmission

6. Channels for Video Transmission
6.3 Application of Rates and Charges

6.3.1 General
A.	A station connection used with one service may be used with another service for the same direction of transmission, provided the service periods do not overlap.
B.	One transmit terminal and one receive terminal charge shall apply for each local channel. Interoffice mileage applies between the serving central offices and a loop charge applies between the customer location and the serving central office. However, only one loop charge applies when the local channel is associated with interexchange service. One loop and interoffice mileage charges apply for a local channel connected to the switching center.
C.	The maximum charge during any one month for channels or station connections is that applicable for monthly service, 24 hours per day.

6.3.2 Surcharges
