

---

Channels for Television Transmission

---

3. General Regulations
3.4 Responsibility of the Customer

---

3.4.1 Liability
A.	The subscriber indemnifies and saves the Telephone Company harmless against claims for libel, slander or the infringement of copyright, or any other claims, arising from or in connection with the material or subject matter transmitted over a channel; against claims for the infringement of patents arising from combining with, or using in connection with, a channel of the Telephone Company, apparatus and systems furnished by the subscriber, and against all other claims arising out of any act or omission of the subscriber in connection with a channel furnished by the Telephone Company.

3.4.2 Station Facilities and Electric Power
A.	The subscriber shall be responsible for all station facilities associated with the television channels and for providing suitable electric power at suitable outlets when and where required.

3.4.3 Unavailable Spare Conduit
A.	Where conduit in connection with an underground entrance to a building is requested by the subscriber and spare conduit is not available, suitable conduit shall be furnished by the subscriber or provided at his expense.